

My Child, You Are Mine

MY CHILD Irregular Meter

Joy Dong

Joy Dong

G C/G G

Hush, let all be still and know the One you're call - ing

G/C G Am7

to. Did you know that all this time, child,

G/B B7 Em

I've been call - ing you? I fear noth - ing bro - ken;

Em/D# Em/D A7

just know I have spo - ken; My Word scat - ters all your night.

Am7 G/B C

Noth - ing hap - pens I don't see, e - ven things that

G/B Am7 G/B Csus2

"should - n't be." Hear My voice and know who I AM.

G C/G

My child, you are Mine.

2

You can tell Me all your burdens—let Me carry you.
Did you know that as I wipe each tear My heart aches, too?
When you feel alone, know this is not your home;
Remember what is yet to come.
Till that dawn I promise you:
Every step we'll walk it through.
Take My hand; entrust Me your heart.
My child, you are Mine.

3.

Let me sing My promises again into your heart
Though the world would fall away, my Word will never part
Fret not for tomorrow, bring it joy or sorrow
Don't you know I hold it all?
Close your eyes, My little one
Know that I've already won
Have no fear, I've called you by name
My child, you are Mine

Late one night, several years ago, I was too distraught to sleep, pleading with the Lord about something on my heart. The beginning of this melody came to me, bringing calm and peace, like a lullaby.

It wasn't until this hymns class that I finally found words for it. As a mom loving her own children, I know how tenderly my Father loves me. Having been brought through a recent family crisis, I know how my Father grieves with me and rejoices with me. He carries me in His heart. Take His hand, and He will carry you, too.

—Joy Dong